ST. PATRICK'S EVE. PARTY

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Kennedy Saturday evening, March 16, the Irish aristocracy of Campbell were royally entertained. The invitations for the party announced that "there were snaix to be driv out," and the host and hostess had plenty of help in getting rid of the little green reptiles. Besides the snake hunting, there were bubble blowing contests and other amusements fitting to the occasion. The refreshments served were Irish in every detail and mixed with Irish stories and jokes. Altogether the evening was a lively one and at a late hour the guests departed, declaring Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy to be an honor to the "ould sod." Those present were the young people who recently took part in the farce, and were:

Casey and Molly O'Flarety, Moike and Peggy O'Sullivan, Michael Cassidy, Nora O'Rouke, Dan and Nancy Slattery, Jimmy and Eileen O'Brian and little Kitty O'Brian, Bridget O'Brady, Biddy Bean, Terry O'Moore, Moya Moran, Kathleen Kelly.

TOM THUMB WEDDING

The primary department of the Methodist Sunday School are preparing for an entertainment to be given on Friday evening, March 29th. There will be recitations and songs, a paper doll drill by the infant class, and an exercise entitled "Tom Thumb's Wedding." The youngsters are working under the management of Miss Mary Clark, Superintendent of the Primary Department, and her assistants, and no doubt the entertainment will be a very pleasing one.

Operated Upon

Mr. John Blaine, the genial clerk of the Rochdale Co., was taken to San Jose Monday to the Columbia Hospital and Tuesday morning underwent an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Blaine had not been well for some time and an operation was decided upon for relief. Reports from the hospital are that he is getting along nicely. Mr. Blaine's many friends are hoping for his speedy recovery.

Progressive Kelley

It is now Kelley's Restaurant and Cigar Store. This week Mr. Kelley put in some nice cases and shelving and added a fine line of cigars and tobaccos to his other stock. Mr. and Mrs. Kelley are building up a nice business. Just drop in and see for yourself.

SERVING A COURSE DINNER

Description of Highly Successful Meal That Called for Minimum Amount of Work.

"One day when company came on the maid's day out, we followed this plan of serving our dinner of four courses," said the woman who studied housekeeping problems. "We have a nest of tables which match the dining room furniture. The two largest were placed, each at the left of the person at the head and foot of the table. We omitted a soup course and served meat, salad, dessert and nut courses.

"The meat and condiments were the only dishes on the table. On one of our side tables we placed the vegetables on trays for passing, and the salad with its accessories—dressing and cheese; on the other side table the dessert and nuts, changes of plates and a pitcher of water. At the end of the meat course the soiled dishes and meat platter changed places with the salad paraphernalia, and a napkin covered the used dishes. At the end of the salad course, it and its accompaniments changed places with the dessert and serving dishes. At the end of this course an exchange was made with the nuts.

"On a third nest table in our living room we had previously placed our coffee percolator and cups and saucers, and to that room we adjourned for our after-dinner coffee, after lifting the two small tables containing all the soiled dishes into the butler's pantry. To get the cloth off the dining table and leave the room, which opens into our living room, in perfect order was the work of but two minutes. By following this plan we found it unnecessary to leave the table once during the meal, and we did not have the annoyance of having the table filled with food that should not appear in a mass."

AVOIDING WASTE OF BREAD

Economy Easy to Practice and by No Means Insignificant as Matter of Expense.

There are many ways in which bread may be wasted.

Bread, where economy is studied, should not be eaten before it is 36 hours old, and it becomes stale and unpalatable after three days. The bread should be stored in a cool place which is free from dampness.

In the pantry should stand a special covered receptacle for pieces of bread, crusts and scraps. A large earthenware pan, a wooden butter tub or box or a large flour tub may be utilized.

This should be kept clean, emptied every day or every two days, wiped out carefully, and loose crumbs removed, and scalded or scrubbed once a week, for unless this is done the bread quickly become moldy and unfit for use. All crusts, heels of loaves, trimmings from toast, etc., that cannot be used at once should be placed in this.

There are a great many ways of using the accumulated pieces, principally in the form of puddings. When the housekeeper arranges the menu for the day, puddings in which bread can be introduced should be often served, though not necessarily in the same form.

In every fixed menu provision should be made in it for a daily use of pieces of bread. It is difficult to detect the use of bread in many puddings if the fragments are carefully prepared beforehand.

Meat Loaf.

The meat loaf was made from the beef that was left over from last night's dinner. There was meat, potatoes, carrots, onion and gravy left. We put all except the gravy through the meat chopper; put the meat, vegetables and gravy into a bowl, add one teaspoonful onion juice, one teaspoonful finely chopped red or green pepper, season highly and add fresh bread crumbs enough to form into a loaf; put into a pan that has been brushed with drippings, cover with bread crumbs and brush with well-beaten egg and bread crumbs again. Put into a hot oven and bake 30 minutes. Set aside to get cold. Then slice and garnish with parsley and diced red beets if you have them. This can be baked the day before.

An Adjustable Ironing Board.

This board is light and easily adjusted, does not take a minute to put up or take down, and can be put on any height table, as it adjusts itself. In ironing skirts, etc., the end being open, it does not have to be lifted to place the clothes over it. For material use one piece of lumber 1 by 12 inches by 5 feet, for ironing board, two pieces 2 by 2½ inches by 3 feet for cleats, and one piece 2 by 2½ inches by 6 feet for legs. After smoothing and shaping the lumber, put the cleats on with screws, and a bolt hinge for the adjustable leg. The leg should be shaped as illustrated, for this allows it to fit any height table.—Woman's Home Companion

Pays to Be Up-to-Date.

"A man has to be up-to-date to do anything nowadays."

"Yes," replied Dustin Stax. "When I talk to an investigating committee I find it desirable not to dwell needlessly on the past."

FEED LOT CONTRIBUTES MUCH TOWARDS PROFIT IN CATTLE

There Is No Place on Farms Where Gains Can be Eaten Up Quicker—Excellent Plan Is to Provide Shed That Is Open to South and Windtight to North, West and East.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

Carrots should be raised in quantities whenever possible as they are a very valuable addition to the feed in making it palatable. They require light, sandy soil and with little cultivation produce large crops.

Linseed meal in small quantities once or twice a week keeps horses in fine condition.

Last winter we saw a bunch of 85 steers being fed on a farm near Aurora, Ill. These cattle stood in a large lot on the side of a hill in mud up to their knees. The barn and all its surroundings were as filthy as could be imagined, and we were not surprised when the owner, looking gloomily over his cattle, remarked: "I never seemed to hit off steer feeding to any great advantage."

Heavily timbered land does not make good feeding ground for cattle because the sun cannot dry out the ground as quickly as an open lot.

The best feeding shed for cattle is one that is wind-tight on the north, east and west and entirely open on the south.

Of course a paved feed lot is an expensive proposition at the start, but we believe that on a reasonable cost the profit will more than justify the expense. Even if a man cannot afford to pave his feed lot he can drain it with tiling and by the addition of gravel, and small, smooth stones improve its condition at very small cost.

Oats make an ideal feed for the lamb during the winter, but he needs about only a pound a day to keep in fine condition. In addition he must have clover hay or alfalfa or corn fodder and turnips and other roots at least three times a week.

A very handy wheelbarrow for the feed lot can be made of either wood or iron. The frame should be very strong, but not heavy. Iron makes a strong frame and very light. It can be made in four sections and bolted together. The iron hoop should be made of one-eighth inch iron and is of a size to admit a common flour barrel up to the second row of hoops. The barrel can easily be put in and taken out. The wheel should be made of wood with a very broad tire, not less than three inches, and four inches would be better. If the frame is made of iron, the handles can be made of wood and bolted on. Wood is better for this purpose.

Do you know that some of the smaller packing houses which cater to first class trade at home and abroad will not buy swill-fed hogs at any cost? They want animals that are fed on clean corn, roughage, roots and water.

We do not think much of the skim milk that comes from the creameries for feeding hogs. In many of these creameries, washing powders are used for cleaning the machinery, and this is very injurious to hogs.

Skim milk that is separated on the farm cannot be beaten for feeding pigs, calves and poultry. It is a shame to allow a single gallon of it to escape.

An Illinois farmer writes to know if unthreshed wheat is a good feed for hogs. We think not. If wheat is to be fed at all, better thresh and either soak or boil it. But we do not believe that wheat was ever intended for hog feed.

Cattle that are allowed to run on green beet crops often scour so badly that they are set back from two to four weeks. They do not like the dried and cured crops so well but will eat them if forced to and they make a fairly good ration.

English feeders raise large quantities of turnips, mangles and other roots. In the fall they dig enough for the cattle and leave scattered throughout the field enough to keep the sheep busy for weeks. Some feeders allow the sheep to dig them out of the ground while others dig them for them. The latter plan is the best.

Many cattle feeders who do not believe that silage is a good feed will continue to stuff their animals with corn fodder or timothy hay. If these men would take the pains to conduct a careful experiment they would quickly discover that silage even as a feed would beat corn fodder.

Silage fed alone is not ideal for fattening steers. It contains a large excess of carbo-hydrates and some nitrogen must be put into the feed to even it up. Soy beans, clover, alfalfa hay and cotton seed meal will do this to perfection.

If you have plenty of cow peas, clover or alfalfa on the farm, not much use to spend money on bran or cotton seed meal. A little oil cake is good at all times.

The best class of dairy cows cannot return a profit unless they have all the clean and wholesome feed they can possibly consume at all times during the winter.

It is a mistake to keep cows on scant rations during the winter. The cow that goes through the winter on semi-starvation rations suffers a shock from which her system is very slow in recovering, and if the half rations are continued any length of time her milk-giving capacity for the approaching freshening period is materially decreased.

Good feeding does not mean the cows should be stuffed with high-priced grain feeds but coaxed to consume enough roughage and cheap feeds to keep them in good, thrifty condition at all times.

MANURING FOR GOOD POTATOES

Massachusett's Specialist Differs From Familiar Methods in Fertilizer and Preparation.

Dr. J. Fisher of Fitchburg, Mass., is very successful in growing large crops of potatoes, and he varies from our familiar methods principally in his fertilizer formula, the preparation and planting of the seed. Following is the formula:

Two hundred and twenty-five pounds of sulphate ammonia; 750 pounds nitrate of soda; 150 pounds South Carolina floats; 450 pounds acid phosphate; 450 pounds sulphate of potash; 150 pounds sulphate magnesia; 200 pounds air-slacked lime; 2,375 pounds costing about $40.

Two-thirds of this formula will be spread broadcast and will be harrowed in before planting. The seed potatoes are treated with the corrosive sublimate solution to prevent scab, then spread in a greenhouse and allowed to sprout several weeks. At planting time the seed is cut and only one sprout left on each piece, the surplus sprouts being purposely broken off. Dr. Fisher considers a potatoe the size of a marble, which has been started in this way and all but the best sprout rubbed off, as very good seed.

Furrowing out is done with a horse hoe and the seed is planted under a line, giving perfectly straight rows and exact distance between plants. Each seed piece is set upright and covered with about two inches of earth; the remaining third of the fertilizer is now scattered in the drill and covered by running the horse hoe between the rows. The horse weeder and cultivator are used so frequently and thoroughly as to avoid hand hoeing.

WINNING OF AGATHA

It was Monday morning, and little Agata was the only experienced girl of the sausage packing gang that had reported for work. Teofila, the interpreter, had quit the preceding Saturday to get married.

Old Heine, the foreman of the sausage department, ruefully surveyed the half-dozen new girls standing around aimlessly, and big Boleslaw, who had been sent up from the gate with them because enough girls had not appeared for work that morning. An hour of a busy day had gone already with no orders packed, and O'Brien, the shipping boss, was likely to stalk in at any moment, storming at the delay.

"How can dey expec' me to turn out work with such cattle?" groaned old Heine.

"W'at you want us to do?" demanded pretty little Agata.

Old Heine stared. He had always associated prettiness with shallowness, and he thought Agata passed too much time primping ever to learn anything.

"You speak English?" he queried.

"Sure," answered Agata.

He told her what he wanted done. In ten minutes everybody was busy and old Heine could think calmly of the impending visit of O'Brien.

Stalwart Boleslaw felt humiliated at having to work at such tasks as the girls did, and he listened shamefully as Agata translated old Heine's orders to him. The other men saw that he was bashful, and they increased his discomfiture by their raillery. He soon determined to make himself independent of Agata's assistance by learning to understand the foreman himself.

Old Heine was pleased with Agata, except for her good looks. He feared that she would soon leave him to get married, as Teofila had done, with a green gang on his hands. To postpone this evil as long as possible he determined that no man in the sausage department should court her if he knew it.

In a few days Matje, the trucker, began to loiter between loads at the table where Agata worked. Agata, marking old Heine's displeasure, tried to rid herself of Matje by telling him if Piotr, back in the old country, who some time would come to Chicago to claim her. But instead of acting as a deferrent, her story seemed to arouse in him a sudden ambition to overcome his absent rival. Then one day he got down to the loading platform with a box of sausage after the train had been pulled. Thereupon old Heine discharged him and put Boleslaw in his place. Truckers were easier to get than interpreters, and he felt certain that the bashful Boleslaw would not try to woo Agata. Boleslaw was pleased to find himself doing a man's work.

In a few days Franciszek, the nailer, began to linger, after his day's work was done, for a chance to walk home with Agata. Old Heine soon noticed this. One morning Franciszek came a few minutes late and found Boleslaw in his place. Rheumatic Tomasz was put to trucking.

Anton, the sealer, was the next to fall a victim to the charms of Agata. A few days later a customer complained of the weights of a consignment, and Anton was discharged. Boleslaw was put in his place at the scales.

Old Heine did not relish these inroads on his gang. No one seemed to understand why the men had been discharged for offenses that hitherto had been condoned, so the foreman hinted the reason to Agata, hoping that she would keep the men at a distance.

Boleslaw, not realizing that his apparent bashfulness had had an important influence on his advancement, felt a pardonable pride, because after only six months of work he was earning as much as any one on the gang. He no longer had to get his orders through Agata, and now his fellows seldom laughed at his shyness. But he had long admired Agata, as she was aware from his glances.

One day Boleslaw whispered a request to Agata for permission to take her to a dance on the following Saturday evening. She put him off with an evasive answer, but he took it for a refusal due to his awkwardness and blushed and stammered confusedly. He had heard the story of the absent Piotr, and now he blamed himself for his boldness. Agata seemed so unattainable to him that he marveled at his effrontery in asking to accompany her to the dance.

For the next few weeks Boleslaw worked harder than he had ever worked before. He had done every kind of work in the sausage packing room, and now he set himself to learn the various brands of sausage, how to keep the time of the workers and even the names of all of old Heine's customers. As Boleslaw's efficiency grew old Heine gave him more to do, until he was practically running the packing gang besides doing his own work at the scales.

A straw boss had long been needed for the packing gang, so that old Heine could have more time to oversee the manufacturing end of his department. But dread of increasing his payroll had prevented him from putting on a straw boss. So now he congratulated himself on gaining this end without extra expense. He did not know that Boleslaw's increased industry was due to a desire to fit himself for a job at another plant, where he would not be tormented by the inaccessible charms of Agata.

One evening, after most of the gang had gone home, he asked the foreman for his time, saying that he was going back to the old country and desired to be paid in full. This was a common ruse in Packingtown when a worker had secured a new job and did not want to return to his old employer for the rest of his wages. Old Heine suspected the truth in Boleslaw's case. Boleslaw was worth more to him than to anyone else, and, besides, Boleslaw knew certain secrets of the sausage packing room that might prove valuable to a rival. Thus the mere suspicion that his scaler had procured employment elsewhere suddenly had enhanced his value to old Heine. He went to his office where he kept his timebook thinking of ways to retain Boleslaw.

While old Heine was gone Boleslaw went to speak to Agata. "W'en you go to ol' country?" she asked.

Boleslaw was surprised to discover that she was interested in his movements. Her question gave him hope.

"Maybe w'en Piotr coom to dis country," he replied.

Agata laughed. "Aw, dat vas jus' a lie, 'cause I no want to be boddered by dem udder fellers," she explained.

"Den dere's no Piotr?" exclaimed Boleslaw, mystified. "But you not let me talk to you and I love you," he said, desperately.

"Dem udder fellers dey all git fired 'cause o' me," she said, with downcast eyes. "I was afraid you get fired, too. But I not tell you dat lie about Piotr."

"I been lyin' to ol' Heine, too, 'bout goin' to ol' country. I got anudder job," said Boleslaw.

The foreman reappeared. "How

much will they pay you!" he blurted out.

Boleslaw was confused at being overheard. "Twenty-five cents, gang time," he confessed.

"I gif you 25 cents straight time an' make you boss o' the packin' gang," offered Old Heine.

Boleslaw searched Agata's face for a cue. "All right," he finally agreed.

"But if I lose Agata you'll have to take her place makin' dese green hands understand w'at I say," declared old Heine, suspiciously.

Boleslaw looked into the girl's dark eyes. "Tomorrow I know 'bout dat," he said, laughing.—Chicago Daily News.

Otter Makes Much Trouble.

One of the otters at the London zoo has discovered how to escape from the pond. He clambers up the fence, jumping in an astonishing fashion. Various alterations in the fence have been made, but hitherto all efforts to keep him a prisoner have been baffled by his ingenuity. The otter is tame, and has always been caught again after escaping. Once he came back and climbed into the pond of his own accord. He generally makes for the Regent's park canal, but, failing apparently to find fish worth the catching therein, invades the streets of Camden town, and is reported to the society as an escaped wild animal, "kangaroo" being one of the many designations given to help the officials to identify him.

Built Business From "Want Ad."

"The 'want ad.' pages have forced many men into business for themselves. One man determined to sell the family horse. He put a sign on the front gate and told all his friends, but still no sale. As a last resort he put an ad. in the paper and sold the horse at his own price. The man was so surprised at this result and attracted by the plan that he bought another horse and sold it, and is today an extensive horse dealer."—Wichita Eagle.

NEW ALPHABET VERY SIMPLE

Light and Dark Marks Have Different Meanings in System Just Completed by Prof. Scott.

Now a new alphabet!

Prof. Fred Newton Scott of the University of Michigan is the father of the system. He calls it simple and predicts its adoption by the English-speaking world on the theory that it will meet the modern demands of scientific management.

The new code of letters is intended to save time, to shorten words, and to make spelling "more rational."

Prof. Scott, a bearded, bald-headed, studious man just past middle age, after many months of patient study, has completed the system, which he outlined in detail in a lecture before the Modern Language association in Mandel hall at the University of Chicago.

He has just completed the preparation of a series of papers in which he discusses the subject from the technical standpoint. These, he promises, will be made public in a few weeks, after which he expects to get thousands of indorsements from the "thinking studious public."

"The elements of the new alphabet are so simple that a child easily can comprehend them in two hours," said Prof. Scott. "For a consonant a perpendicular stroke, stem or column will be used, to which may be added horizontal prejections at the top, middle and bottom, while a dash or broken circle should represent vowels. Each of these marks will have one meaning when they are light and another when they are heavy.

"Simple vowels are presented by a dash, while rounded vowels would be marked by a circle with the open vowels heavy and closed ones light. A horizontal dash, for instance, placed in front of the stem would mean a simple vowel, while the back position would be represented by a vertical dash and the intermediate position by an inclined dash."

The alphabet is said to have the approval of type manufacturers and typewriter houses. The system is to reduce the modern English alphabet by nine characters and do away with combinations, which, Prof. Scott contends, are "cumbersome, wasteful and complicated and do not express clearly the thought of the speaker or writer."

The design of the new alphabet is to take the place of the old code, but no attempt—at least not for a time—is to be made to adapt it to ordinary or to stenographic writing.

The professor asks this question: "Since we have devoted—and do devote—so much energy and thought to time-saving devices, why not save time in that which would benefit every man and woman, especially those in business?"

Prof. Scott argues that his new alphabet, when firmly established, would be a hundredfold more beneficial than even simplified spelling.

"What tired business man at some time of the day or other has not laid down a long letter because the long words and sentences were tiring his brain?" asks Prof. Scott. "What jurist has not at some time or other been entangled in the maze of verbiage until his eyes swam?

"Yet all of this could be so simplified that writing would take only half the time that it does with the old alphabet. We surely need a simplified method of writing English.

"Some will argue that the system I have obtained is too complicated for the lay mind and that it is more or less of a scientific proposition. To these critics I will answer that the elements of the system are simple—far more so than those of our present language. In the code I offer there are two kinds of sounds, a voice and a breath sound, the former being designated by a heavy stem and the latter by a light one.

"For instance, a thin perpendicular column or stem with a dash at the top of the stem stands for 'f' as in fat, which you will see is only a sound of the breath and lips..

"By widening the column and making it heavier and thicker I get the voice of 'v' as in vat, a vibration of the vocal cords and purely a voice sound. The same as in thin, the 'th' is a breath sound, while the 'th' used in 'there' becomes a vocal sound."

Right to Keep Pigs in London.

The freedom of the city of London carries with it, nominally, at any rate, the right to keep pigs in the parish of St. James, Piccadilly. But even were any one disposed to avail himself of this liberty, and if the sanitary authorities failed to object, land in that part of London is somewhat too costly for profitable pig farming.

Some Try.

Can a man love a woman he's afraid of?—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Two Exceptions.

The music master says very affably. "Now, you see, children, in a march we always have four beats to a measure, to accommodate the step; for I don't know anything that has three feet, except, perhaps, a milking stool." "Or a yard stick," adds a bright girl in the back row.

Consent Always Obtained.

A court of common council of London, England, found after informal investigation of charges made that "no officer of the corporation ever played golf in business hours without the consent of the head of the department."

IRONING THE TABLE NAPKINS

Points Worthy of Remembrance That Will Conserve the Life of the Article.

Fold them double, selvage to selvage, perfectly even, and mangle several at one time, then let them lie rolled up in a towel for some time before ironing. To iron them, take one at a time, shake out and stretch evenly, lay out very smoothly on the table with the right side uppermost and as square as possible.

Iron the right side first, then the wrong, and back again on the right. Be careful not to stretch the edges out of shape, and iron until quite dry. They are ironed on both sides to avoid having one side rough and the other smooth, as sometimes happens. Give the hems an extra iron to dry them well.

Table napkins can be folded either in three or in four, according to taste. To fold in four, fold in the same way as a tablecloth, only on the opposite side, bringing the right side outside instead of the wrong. Get the ends very even, press the folds well with an iron, and fold in four across, making a square again. Air well before laying them away.

To fold in three, measure the sides (hems) first, and get them divided into three equal parts, press them down with an iron to keep them in place, then make the folds right across and iron them down, and press with the iron once more.

If there is a name, it must be on the outside when the table napkin is folded; if a monogram or raised initials, iron well on the wrong side to make the embroidery stand out.

HANGING PICTURES

Two Hanging Nails.

A large picture hung by one wire is hard to keep in place so that it will always appear straight, as a slight jar or a gust of air may shift it. An improvement in the hanging can be made by attaching two wires as shown in the sketch. The hanging can be better accomplished and the picture held more firmly in place in this manner.—Popular Mechanics.

Renovating Painting.

Often the beauty of a painting is lost because it is so thickly covered with dust. To remedy this follow these suggestions:

Brush the painting free from dust and wash the canvas with water, using a sponge. Now take a piece of shaving soap and rub it over the entire painting, leaving it on a very short while. Scrub off with a brush, and when it is thoroughly dried, rub the canvas with a piece of linen which has been dipped into benzine. Do not use this too freely, however. If the painting appears dull, a little olive oil will benefit this. A coat of thin, colorless varnish is now applied, which protects the painting and keeps it bright for a long time.

To brighten a gold frame, boil some onions in water until soft, mash them fine and use the fluid that is extracted.

Uses of Hot-Water Bottle.

I wonder how many know the many uses of hot-water bottles. Nearly every one uses it filled with hot water in cases of neuralgia, toothache or pains in any part of body, or filled with crushed ice to lay on head in cases of brain trouble. One way I have found it useful is to fill with hot water and set my bread on it to rise on a cold night or in the day time in cold weather. Still another is to make a cover to fit it with a pocket on each side large enough to hold a nursing bottle, put bottle of milk in pocket and fill hot water bottle with hot water. It will keep the milk warm for baby and save the trouble of getting up to warm milk on a cold night.

For Cleaning Sewing Machine.

First place it near a fire to get warm that the congealed oil may melt, then oil it thoroughly with paraffin. Work it quickly for a few minutes, then wipe off all the paraffin and dirt. Treat it to a very little of the machine oil, and after the application of a little more kerosene wipe it again and it will be ready for use. People often shirk the trouble of cleaning their machines like this, but a clogged and heavy machine under this treatment will become like new, and its easy working will be ample reward for the trouble incurred.

Rolled Rib Roast.

Have the backbone and ribs removed and utilize them for making a stew for lunch. Tie the meat into a round shape and sprinkle it with salt and pepper, then dredge with flour and place in a dripping pan. Have the oven hot when the meat is first put into it, in order that it may be seared over quickly to prevent the juices from escaping. Then reduce the heat and baste often with the fat in the pan. When done place on a hot platter and surround with riced potato.

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY

Tells How She Keeps Her Health — Happiness For Those Who Take Her Advice.

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to your wonderful medicine." —Mrs. J. G. JOHNSON, Scottville, Mich., R.F.D. 3.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for woman's ills known.

Thermometer Detects Icebergs.

The method hitherto generally in use of taking water temperatures on transatlantic liners to guard against the approach of icebergs has been to dip water up out of the sea and take its temperature as quickly as possible. By this method continuous measurements cannot be taken, but a microthermometer has now been invented by a professor of McGill university, which, with an instrument similar in action to the oscillograph attached, records the slightest changes in temperature by drawing a continuous curve. The thermometer indicates exceedingly fine differences in temperature by means of the variations in the resistance of a coil of wire, these variations serving to indicate the changes of temperature of the medium in which the instrument is immersed. The coil consists of 250 feet of pure iron, silk-covered wire, wound on a copper cylinder. If an iceberg is large it may be detected many miles away by the coolness it causes in the water.

NEGRO KNEW NOTED MEN

Veteran Porter, Who Died Recently, Served on Private Car of Several Presidents.

The death of David Hazelton, the veteran porter in the office of the president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in Baltimore, removes a familiar figure from the ranks of the old school of Maryland servants. Perhaps no other negro in this country was acquainted with so many prominent men of affairs, says the Railroad Man's Magazine.

David, who was over seventy, was a native Baltimorean. While a boy he witnessed the Baltimore riot on April 19, 1861, and was ever fond of telling of the encounter with the Massachusetts soldiers.

He entered the service of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in 1874 as a waiter at the Relay house, a few miles from Baltimore. Dining cars were not then known on American railroads.

He continued in this position for more than a year. Later he became head waiter at the Deer Park hotel when the Baltimore & Ohio opened it in western Maryland. It was President John W. Garrett who about 1876 chose him as a private car porter. For more than thirty years he remained in charge of the official cars of the Baltimore & Ohio's presidents.

During that time David crossed the continent hundreds of times in charge of special parties and with officials of the railroad. He has ridden over practically every mile of railroad track in North America from the Isthmus of Panama to the northernmost lines of Canada. He was six feet tall and made a striking appearance in his uniform of royal blue trimmed in gold and cap slightly tilted.

On a trip with a party in which Commodore Vanderbilt was a guest David's dinner was pronounced by the commodore the best meal he had ever eaten. David had charge of presidential parties from General Grant down to McKinley and Roosevelt. General Grant was numbered as one of his favorite guests. President Cleveland also frequently traveled with David. When he started on his honeymoon he made a special request that David be placed in charge of his car.

David retired a few years ago and became a messenger in the office of the Baltimore & Ohio's president. Visitors will recall David occupying a place just outside the suite of the chief executive of the road, his hat slightly tilted and humming a tune popular in Dixie.

Human Haste.

From a series of experiments recently made it is evident that the average person can taste the bitter of quinine when one part is dissolved in 152,000 parts of water. Salt was detected in water when one part to 640 of the liquid was used. Sugar can be tasted in 228 parts of water, and common soda in 48. In nearly all cases women could detect a smaller quantity than men.

Argument for Vegetarianism.

Vegetarianism has been claimed as a part of the wisdom of the east, and it clearly has its uses, for two centuries ago an Edinburgh physician who weighed 32 stone "by regular adherence to this regimen reduced his weight to almost a third, became strong, cheerful, active and healthy."

Had Approval of Clerk.

An Atchison business man, who has a small store, recently hired a clerk who was very shiftless. He didn't half attend to his duties. "I think I'll have to hire another clerk," said the business man. "You ought to," was the reply, "there's too much work here for just one clerk."

Cloth for English Officers of State.

An ancient custom stil practiced in London is the inspection and selection by the court of aldermen of the cloth annually sent to the great officers of state and other dignitaries. Each one of a large number of officials is entitled to four and one-half yards of best black cloth. The origin of the custom is thus explained: In the early periods of English history the retainers of great lords wearing their liveries were so numerous as to be dangerous both to the king and the laws. The disorders arising from them required all the vigor of the crown and the legislature to restrain. Many statutes between the years 1377 and 1504 were passed for that purpose. An exception was introduced into the prohibition in favor of guilds and fraternities and "men of the Misteries" of cities and boroughs. This probably gave rise to the "liverymen" of the several companies and to the gift of "livery cloth."

Population of India.

The final figures of the census of India are published and show the following results. The number of male residents of the country is 161,326,110, and of females 315,132,537 persons. The London Times says: "Slight vestiges of the European contest for supremacy in India remain in the French and Portuguese settlements, the only portions of India absolutely independent of British rule. The census of the French settlements carried on synchronously with the British enumeration, has yielded a provisional total of 282,379 persons (an increase of ¾ per cent), while that of the Portuguese settlements, taken in December last, yielded a return of 604,930 prsons. These figures bring up the total number of persons within the geographical confines of India and Burma to the huge total of 316,019,846, as compared with 295,166,039 ten years ago."

Recognizing People.

Data have been gathered in Germany with reference to the distance at which persons may be recognized by their faces and figures. If one has good eyes, the Germans claim, one cannot recognize a person whom he has seen only once at a greater distance than 82 feet. If the person is well known to one, one may recognize him at 300 feet and if it is a member of one's family, even at 500 feet.—Scientific American.

Summer Excursion Rates

To All Eastern Cities and European Points Announced

San Jose, March, 1, 1912.

Mr. E. Shillingsburg, District Passenger Agent of the Southern Pacific at San Jose, has received the schedules, rates of fare and dates of sale for the summer excursion rates to the East and Europe. He is now preparing schedules to be sent out to inquirers. Any inquiry directed to either him or any agent of the Southern Pacific will be given prompt attention by experienced passenger men and bring to your home all the information you desire about any trip. Arrangements for stopovers etc. can be made in your home or at the local offices.

In another column of this paper will be found a display advertisement giving rates and dates of sale for the principal Eastern cities.

European, Oriental, or around the world rates and schedules will be cheerfully prepared on request.

Santa Clara County Fair

Before the first of the year it was decided by the San Jose Chamber of Commerce to take part in promoting a County Fair, and a resolution was passed by that body, empowering the President to appoint a committee for that purpose, and to carry out the project.

The committee which was commissioned consists of: Dr. L. J. Belknap, President, E. W. Allen, Vice-President, H. E. Jones, Secretary, First National Bank, Treasurer, Geo. B. Polhemus, Geo. W. McCracken, Mrs. A. A. Fowler, Mrs. J. G. Jury, P. B. Payne, Campbell, W. H. Kelly, Palo Alto, W. L. Prussia, H. C. Doerr, Valentine Koch, J. Trimble, Henry Hecker, Gilroy, Claud Stark, Morgan Hill, C. C. Spaulding Sunnyvale, Walter Clark, Mountain View, Geo. Hamilton, Santa Clara, Z. S. Riggs, Los Gatos, E. McHenry.

These names at once bespeak success for a county fair, and the fourth National Industrial and Food Exposition in all the different departments, stock shows, poultry exhibit, agricultural, horticultural, vitacultural and floral products, machinery, ranch implements, irrigating and spraying plants, cereal and food demonstration, household products and the educational arts.

A Floral exhibit which will include all varieties of cultivated flowers and shrubs that grow in the valley and the neighboring hills, is the latest plan of the directors of the County Fair, who held a meeting Tuesday at their offices, 47 West Santa Clara street.

The County Fair will be held from the 5th to the 15th of September, but because a better showing of flowers can be made earlier in the year, it has been decided to hold this floral part of the fair some time during the month of May. Plans have been made for a much more extensive exhibit of flowers than has ever been in the County, and it will appeal to a larger class, and that the flower show will be divided into sections, one for improvement clubs, another for school children, another for professionals and another for novices, and in each class many valuable prizes will be awarded.

It is planned to hold the flower exhibit in the open, probably in the City Hall Park, which is thoroughly adapted for such a purpose.

D. T. Bateman, County Superintendent of Schools, heartily approves of the suggestion that the schools of the county go into competition for prizes at the show. In most of the school yards some flowers have already been planted, and the competitive idea will bring out the best results from the children, it is thought, both for their own good and for the success of the exhibit. This department of the County Fair has been put into the hands of Mrs. J. G. Jury, who will oversee not only these exhibits, but will also arrange for brief compositions on the subject of botany. The show will probably last for two or three days with some special feature to mark each day.

MILCELLANEOUS SHOWER

The Grange held their regular monthly social meeting at the home of H. G. Keesling Tuesday evening. Forty-five members went out in a tally-ho with the Hon. Bohnett holding the ribbons. One of the features of the evening was a miscellaneous shower tendered E. Lisle Keesling and his prospective bride, Miss Eva Mason, which was a complete surprise to the young couple. A sumptuous supper was served and a fine program was rendered during the evening, consisting of the following numbers: Two readings by Ed Weisendanger on the Courtship of Young Folks. A vocal solo by Mrs. Clara Wooster and instrumental solos by Miss Myrtle Arnott and Hayes Keesling.

The School Election

When the people of Campbell cast their votes on April 5th, they have a new duty to perform—the electing of a woman as a member of the school board.

Much consideration is being given this fact as there is great desire to put a woman in the place who is in every way emminently capable of filling it.

The duties of the office are such as require efficiency in several ways. Besides being willing to make herself familiar with the school law of California, in all its details, if necessary, as every member of the board should be, she should be a woman who is fond of children, as her duties might at any time call into association with them. She should be a woman with whom the teachers might often be pleased to consult, instead of going direct to the parent; and whose interest in the school was sufficient to make frequent visits a pleasure.

A few of the powers and duties of the trustees in brief are:

1. To prescribe certain rules and enforce the same.
2. To manage and control school property—pay all moneys collected by them from any source whatsoever, and all moneys apportioned them, into the county treasury, to be placed to the credit of the special fund of their district.
3. To purchase text books when parents are unable, furniture and such other things as may be necessary.
4. To rent, furnish, repair, and insure the school property.
5. To build school houses, or to purchase or sell school lots.
6. To make in the name of the district conveyauces on all property belonging to the district or sold by them.
7. To employ a principal for each school under their control.
8. To employ the teachers, janitors and other employees of the school; to fix and order paid their compensation, unless otherwise ordered by law.
9. To exclude or suspend pupils when necessary.
10. To enforce a course of study.
11. To manage libraries.
12. To exclude certain books.
13. To furnish certain books.
14. To keep a register of children applying for admission, and to notify parents of vacancies; children to be received in the order of registering.
15. To permit children from other districts to attend only on consent of trustees in the district in which the children reside. Should consent be refused the parents may appeal to the county superintedent, whose decision is final.

Improvement Club

The Improvement Club met last Friday evening with a good number of members present. R. K. Thomas presided and W. S. Shelly was secretary.

Mr. Shelly was appointed on the Advertising Committee.

Mr. Berry made the report for the Park Committee, and stated that the most important topic for discussion was the proposed change of the station site. He said that he understood that the depot would be moved in the near future, probably being placed where the park now is.

Mr. Berry was also appointed to look after the culvert near the depot. R. K. Thomas is to take this matter up with the Supervisors.

The matter of further improvements to sidewalks was referred to the Committee on Public Improvements.

The Committee on Advertising was instructed to look up the matter of issuing a booklet for the club. It being the idea to get out a little book descriptive of Campbell and the surrounding country, to be distributed to those inquiring about this section. The committee was given until the next meeting of the club to report.
